

Supporting the European economy and society

The European chemical industry: key facts and figures

The chemical industry plays an important role in supporting the European economy and society. Not only does the sector provide jobs and added value, it is a major net exporter – thus helping protect macro-economic and financial growth and stability during uncertain economic times.