Origin of Contracteranto

- Contractors and their non-native speaking workers
  - Safety problem
  - Need for efficient communication
  - Need to make safety instructions, regulations, etc... in a foreign language
- Development of a database
  - of items related to safety
  - from out all sectors
  - focused on high-risk tasks
  - translated in all EU languages

Target groups

- Companies and their prevention departments who work a lot with non native speaking operational workers for short or middle-long periods (chemical industry, transport companies, construction sector,...)
- Contractors who put more and more non native language speaking workers into the different sectors
- The non native speakers themselves, who work abroad for contractors on short or middle-long term (f.e. 6 months) for a certain project
- The non native speaking workers who are low skilled or had low education
- Temporary workers

Former research (BE)

---

- Endwork for Prevention Advisor in Psychosocial matters

  - Existing material and solutions
- Workgroup with representatives of different sectors, big companies and linguists
- Pilotcase in the cleaning industry

The real life ...

- Illiteracy
- Basic vocabulary <-> communication sentences
- Visual material <-> pure translations
- Custom made for the company <-> need for uniformity

The database

- Webbased, user friendly, dynamic, no limits to grow, ...
- In analogy with <http://www.transperanto.org>

Contracteranto

---

- More sectors, more functions, more tasks, ....
- More levels, more search possibilities (per sector, per function, per task, per task over all sectors ...)
- Sound
- Possibility to add words, lists of words, sectors
- Output

Methodology

- Function selection
- Analysis of the language needs per function
- Listing the top-10 of items per task
- Translations
- Revisions

Project outlines

- Application by the EU for subsidies
- 1,5 year project
- 4 sectors (chemical and metal industry, construction and human health and care activities)
- 7 languages: DU, FR, ENG, TR, BU, ES and PT
- Development in BE, translations in other countries
- Looking for other sectors and languages all over EU
- Final conference in Brussels

Conclusion

- Contracteranto
  - A useful and supportive communication mean
  - Uniform vocabulary for both employer and employee, on all levels
- Limitations of Contracteranto
  - Not a comprehensive solution
  - Does not replace integration matters
